

Shade

'A society grows great when old men plant trees whose shade they know they will never sit in.'

Greek Proverb

- The seeds we plant today may only be small, but they can have a significant impact on future generations.
- How have you helped others flourish over the last school year?
- In what ways are we investing our time and energy in things that will have a long-term impact on other people's wellbeing or the future of the planet?
- Let's appreciate the comforts we enjoy today and the people of past generations who have made them possible.
- What is our legacy? What trees are we planting for others to sit under one day?
